FUN FACTS:

- Land of Adventure is LEGOLAND® California's eighth block of attractions.
- The adventure theme of the area was chosen through research and collaboration with Park guests and is based on the LEGO® Adventurer series featuring Johnny Thunder.
- Land of Adventure was designed by Master Model Designer Bill Vollbrecht who studied Egyptian history and hieroglyphics to make the experience educational and authentic.
- On Beetle Bounce, children are launched to a height of 15 feet, nearly reaching the LEGO scarab beetles atop the obelisks.
- The scarab beetles have translucent jewel-toned wings that span four feet and are the first models in the Park made with colored translucent bricks.
- When read phonetically from top to bottom, the hieroglyphics decorating the front of Beetle Bounce say "Beetle Bouncer."
- The female pilot perched outside of Cargo Ace was inspired by Amelia Earhart and is the first full-sized LEGO model designed and built by Master Model Designer Andy Grubb. Her peanut butter and jelly sandwich pays homage to the designer's favorite lunch.
- Pharaoh's Revenge is the first outdoor attraction built by ride manufacturer Prime Play.
- The Pharaoh model standing guard over Land of Adventure is one of the largest models in the Park. It stands 16 feet tall and is made of more than 300,000 LEGO bricks. It took more than six months to build.
- The smallest model in Land of Adventure, made of just 19 bricks, is a diamond ring in the treasure room of Lost Kingdom Adventure.
- Overall, Land of Adventure has more than 75 new LEGO models made of nearly half a million bricks.
